

To be tied up Sorry I'm late I was tied up in an important meeting.	To be very busy and unable to speak to anyone, go anywhere, etc
To follow something up I can't tell you for sure, I'll have to follow up on that.	To try to find out more about something; do something else to achieve aim
To hand over I handed the company over to my son.	To pass responsibility to someone else.
To keep at I kept at it and finally got successful.	To persist with something, to continue doing something
To lay off I had to lay off some staff because of the Bad economic situation.	The temporary suspension or permanent termination of employment of an employee
To pile up Every time I go on holiday work keeps on piling up.	To increase in quantity, to become more and more
To set up I have always dreamed of setting up my own company.	To establish a business, institution, or other organisation.
To squeeze someone or something in Sorry I can't squeeze you in, I have back to back meetings.	To find time for (someone or something)
To take someone on They finally took someone on to help me with my job.	To start to employ someone
To wiggle out of I tried to wiggle out of it, but my boss said it was extremely important.	To avoid doing (something that one does not want to do) in some clever or dishonest way
